

THE TRIAD

PUBLIC ACCESS COVENANT v0.1

No person should need money in order to encounter, use, understand or reproduce the essential TRIAD.

1. The method comes before the product

The physical card is a carrier of the method, not a gate to it. A person should be able to understand and use the essential TRIAD from the freely available public materials alone.

2. No required purchase

No proprietary deck, subscription, paid interpretation service, account or hidden body of knowledge is required to use the essential TRIAD.

3. Free essential materials

The canonical questions, one-page guide, safety constitution and a printable form of the card are to remain available without payment.

4. Reproduction for access

People may print, copy and share the essential TRIAD materials for personal, educational, community and other non-exclusive access purposes. The project should not create artificial scarcity around the basic method.

5. No priesthood

No individual, organisation or platform is to be treated as possessing privileged interpretive authority over the three questions. Companion prompts can be useful, but they are not hidden doctrine.

6. Transparency about layers

The canonical card and questions must remain distinguishable from optional companion content, examples, commentary, research notes and future experiments.

7. Commercial products cannot become the gate

Physical cards, printed books or other products may exist, but the existence of a paid object must never make payment necessary to encounter, understand or reproduce the essential TRIAD.

8. Attribution and identity

People are encouraged to preserve the name THE TRIAD and the canonical wording when sharing the method so that public versions remain recognisable. This covenant is an access commitment, not a substitute for a formal trade mark or copyright licence.

9. Future stewardship

If THE TRIAD changes, the public record should say what changed and why. A future version should not quietly narrow the freedoms promised by this covenant without openly acknowledging the change.
